

TIQ TOK

The debut of Denver two-piece, TIQ TOK, highlights the strong, yet buttery vocals of Gabby Gutierrez-Reed, layered with the dance-inducing, precision sounds of drummer and producer, Tony Gilbert-Davis. The twosome connected during the summer of 2015 and within a week formed the band TIQ TOK, it was then when they began writing “Who Do You Think You Are,” the funky, heartfelt tribute to not being an asshole which showcases the groups’ range and playful sound styles. The group released their first full-length album, Contemplative Panda in October, 2018.

While TIQ TOK spans genres, group members find inspiration from soul, rhythm and blues, hip hop and electronica along with influences that sound like Portishead and Poliça remixing a Sylvan Esso song, performed live by Tune-Yards. TIQ TOK gains special powers from live performances that include live vocals, drums, guitar, looping and electronic euphoria. Stay tuned to the two-piece via social media for upcoming releases and events.
